POMERENE PROMINENT PROTESTANT

INDORSES CANDIDACY OF AL SMITH FOR PRESIDENT

The Democratic Nomination Should By All Means Be Given the Governor of New York—His Religion, He Claims, Should Not Be a Bar To Obtain the Highest Office In the Gift of the Republic—The Statement Virtually Removes Ohio's Son From Consideration In the Race.

Atlee Pomerene is out in a public declaration in which he holds that Al Smith's religion should not be a bar to his candidacy for the presidency. In a signed article, published in the current issue of the North American Review, the former Ohio senator aggressively espouses the right of the New York governor to run for the Democratic presidential nomination.

He hits hard at the religious intolerance of those Democrats who would bar Smith from the nomination because he happens to be a Catholic. Pomerene is now in Washington as one of the special government counsel prosecuting Albert F. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair in the oil fraud cases.

Unusual significance is seen in the Ohioan's endorsement of Smith, not only because Pomerene is a Protestant but because he himself, on account of the recent United States supreme court decision giving the government a sweeping victory in the civil oil cases, is being increasingly discussed as a prospective nominee for president. Concerning the bearing of Smith's religious faith on his qualifications for the presidency, Pomerene says:

"Who among those who oppose the nomination or election of a Catholic or a Jew to high office would not resent the action of a Catholic or a Jew who should oppose a candidate because he is an Episcopalian, a Presbyterian, a Methodist, or a Baptist? If a Catholic or a Jew were to insist that no one should be eligible to high office unless he accepted Catholicism or Judaism what a wailing and gnashing of teeth we would witness."

"In every national crisis from the revolution to the World war no citizen has even thought of questioning the loyalty of his fellow Americans because of differences in religious belief. When the World war was on, did any mother fear for the safety of her son, who was on the battle front with a Catholic on one side and a Jew on the other? If they were good enough to fight our country's battles in time of war let us not deny them the right to be candidate for office in times of peace."

Custom Is Old One

The custom of drinking to health and success to undertakings at banquets dates back to the invasion of the Romans. The word toast appears to have originated from the practice of putting bits of toast in the wine, the guest partaking of such a sip with the draught of wine as soon as the felicitation had passed the lips.

to the Democratic national convention of 1920 and 1924 Pomerene strongly opposed the candidacy of William G. McAdoo. In both conventions he supported Ohio's favorite son, James M. Cox. When Cox withdrew from the contest at the New York convention Pomerene switched his support to John W. Davis, who finally was nominated.

Pomerene's support of Smith's right to run for the 1928 nomination is expected to give increased impetus to the Smith candidacy, especially in Ohio. At the same time it is expected to check the anti-Smith movement of a number of Democratic leaders of the south. Headed by Senator Furnifold M. Simmons of North Carolina, who are trying to crystallize sentiment for Governor Vic Donahey of Ohio.

Some politicians see in this situation a probability that Donahey will be named for vice president on a ticket to be headed by Smith.

PLANS DARING VOYAGE

This young motor boat builder of Constance, Switzerland, named Joerg, has constructed by hand a small motorboat in which he plans to sail from Constance to New York. His route is down the Rhine to Rotterdam, thence to England, to the Azores, to Brazil, to Florida and New York. He claims the discovery of a new fuel, the ingredients of which have been kept secret and which, he expects, will propel his boat across the Atlantic without refueling.

ONE HUNDRED BUSHEL YIELD CENTURY AGO

Father of J. S. Leaming Sr.
Astounded Natives Near Cincinnati In 1827.

A hundred-bushel yield of corn to the acre was first achieved in Ohio exactly 100 years ago, available records as reported in "The Agriculture of Ohio" reveal. The producer of this record yield was Christopher Leaming, father of the originator of the widely known variety, Leaming dent corn.

No exact comparison with present day yields is possible, since in those days probably no allowance was made for moisture content, nor was the yield computed on the basis of dry shelled corn. Aside from that, here is the story as told by J. S. Leaming Sr., in an account of corn culture in 1826:

"When my father (Christopher Leaming), two brothers and myself went to the bottoms to raise corn, in the year, 1827, it was common among corn raisers to say of others' fields that they could take hold of the wild cucumber or peavines at one corner or a five acre lot and shake all the corn in it."

"My father took long strides ahead in corn culture; plowed 2 or 3 inches deeper, cultivated well, cut out all the weeds at laying-by time, which with him was when the corn was in full silk, consequently did not have to call in the aid of horse and brush at gathering time, and as a result raised double the amount per acre, and with the improved seed he introduced and planted in the season of 1827, sold off a 10-acre lot his two-thirds, being 6 2-3 acres, 693 bushels, averaging 104 bushels per acre."

"It went all over the bottoms and astonished everyone along the Miami and was the talk and praise of all the landowners; caused envy with many of the tenants, but resulted in great good in stimulating others to raise as much as Leaming had."

SHORTS AND MIDDINGS

Fifteen bushels of corn an acre is the yield one Ottawa county farmer expects this year as a result of corn borer infestation, 10 borers to the stalk. Last year he got 80 bushels an acre in an adjoining field.

Thousands of acres of waste land in Ohio cry aloud for reforestation. Your county agent or the forestry department at the Ohio agricultural experiment station, Wooster, can tell you how to get the trees.

It took 37 bushels of oats an acre to make the oats crop pay this year, Putnam county farm records indicate.

Farmwives spend about 70 per cent of their time in the kitchen, not always because they want to, but often because the kitchen is inefficiently arranged.

Official Listening in Approved in France

Paris.—Government employees listen in on presumably private telephone conversations in France, but not from curiosity. They merely want to be sure that the telephone is working all right. They seldom sit in on an entire conversation, contenting themselves with sufficient snatches to show whether the communication is clear. From the many complaints one hears it may be assumed they are more easily satisfied with the clarity of the line than the ordinary subscriber.

When the royalist leader, Leon Daudet, was released from prison by a trick telephone call, it was explained by the embarrassed government that the inspectors who listen in on telephone conversations were at luncheon at the time.

This aroused the League of the Rights of Man. They wrote to the minister of commerce to inquire whether telephone conversations were no longer secret. The minister explained that they were, but that in each exchange was an "observation table," whose occupants cut into conversations to test the quality of the service.

Linked Football With Crime in Old Days

London.—The official opening of the football season was held without fear of the law such as prevailed in years gone by.

In the year 1314, Edward II forbade the game and in 1380 Richard II passed a new act for its suppression, while Henry IV, Henry VIII and Elizabeth all tried to stem its increasing popularity by increasing penalties.

These laws were frequently enforced against delinquents and it is recorded that at Dublin in 1579, one Denis Wogan was fined £10 and jailed for a week because he kicked off at a local football game.

Despite the laws, however, many games were played every year and an old record says that "thanks to the sturdy apprentices the streets of London were full of footballs."

SINCLAIR AND ALBERT FALL BEING TRIED

For Conspiracy To Defraud Government In the Teapot Dome Lease of Oil Lands.

Washington, Oct. 19.—(UP.)—The government won its first legal skirmish in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial today when, over defense objection, it obtained admission of Fall's famous letter of July, 1921, to E. L. Doheny, California oil magnate, asserting that he (Fall) then was in complete charge of the government oil reserves.

The victory came after a morning in which Martin Littleton, defense chief, had told the jury former Secretary of Interior Fall and Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, would prove they were acting in interest of the national defense in signing the Teapot Dome lease.

Littleton had declared he would show Fall received no bonds from Sinclair after granting the lease to Sinclair, as the prosecution charged.

Insertion of the Fall letter was considered an initial blow to the defense, since the defense had indicated it would prove that others than Fall were responsible for the naval oil policy which finally resulted in turning the Dome over to Sinclair with the understanding that he should furnish some fuel oil to the navy in return.

Justice Butler of the U. S. Supreme Court, in one of his decisions annulling the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills leases, had characterized the letter as written in "an exultant mood."

Littleton in an advance summation of the case for the two noted defendants, did the following:

Credited Admiral J. K. Robinson, naval oil chief, as originator of the oil leasing plan under which Teapot Dome and Elk Hills were leased.

Said Secretary of the Navy Denby knew of every step in the lease negotiations.

Said Sinclair never owned a share of stock in the Continental Trading Co., the alleged source of $230,500 of Liberty bonds found in Fall's possession following the execution of the Teapot lease.

Said that Sinclair's $25,000 payment to Fall in 1923 was made in Liberty bonds "because bonds were easier to send than a check."

(This payment was in connection with Fall's trip to Russia as counsel for Sinclair, it is claimed.)

Through Littleton's summation ran the clear indication that Fall and Sinclair intend, partly at least, to claim patriotic motives as actuating the deal whereby Teapot Dome passed from the government's hands to Sinclair's Mammoth Oil Co.

Littleton indicated clearly the defense intends to pass from Fall to Admiral Robinson and the then Secretary of Navy Denby much of the responsibility for the deal. It was a transaction he said in furtherance of the navy's defense plans. He painted Fall and Sinclair as aiding these plans by opening a way—with navy acquiescence—to furnish fuel oil for battle craft in exchange for the crude oil of Teapot Dome. The deal, he said had not profited Sinclair anything.

Littleton lifted the curtain on a secret meeting of the navy general board where, he said, Admiral Robinson had told of the oil exchange plan of saving "royalty oil for emergency use of the nation in time of peril."

Harking back to that conference of New Year's, 1922, on Fall's New Mexico ranch, Littleton said the defense would show that it was primarily to discuss Osage Indian oil lands, although Sinclair did inquire if Teapot Dome was to be leased.

After Littleton concluded, the government started presentation of its case by calling G. W. Holland, U. S. Geological Survey lawyer, who identified President Wilson's executive order of April 30, 1915, creating the naval oil reserves, including the Teapot Dome, Wyo., lease here involved, and other records.

Captain H. A. Stuart, U. S. navy oil reserve chief now, and also in the Wilson administration before Admiral Robinson replaced him on Secretary Denby's order, was questioned.

After Stuart identified a single paper, L. F. Martin of the U. S. comptroller general's office, produced the original of the famous lease—signed by Fall and Denby for the government and by Sinclair and some of his officials for the Mammoth Oil Co.

The document was so badly worn that a photostatic copy was filed in evidence.

Assistant Secretary of the Interior E. C. Finney, of Kansas, a major figure in the lease negotiations was the next government witness.

"After the 1921 Harding executive order did you talk with Secretary Fall about the reserves?" Roberts asked.

"Yes," Finney said, "I suggested Dr. Mendenhall (Interior Department oil expert) to take care of the reserves. Mendenhall was later in 1921 relieved and Fall told me he was disappointed in him."

Prosecutor Roberts attempted to bring out that Fall was entirely in charge of making oil leases at the time of the Teapot lease, but defense attorneys objected.

Justice Siddons overruled the objection and the first "exception" was noted by the defense—a preparation for appeal to higher courts on grounds of error, if Fall and Sinclair are convicted.

The Littleton version of the meeting at Fall's ranch is substantially the same as the government's except that the government insists that at the New Mexican ranch of Fall the two men began the alleged plot which, the government claims, ended with transfer of more than $200,000 in Liberty bonds from Sinclair to a kinsman of Fall in connection with the lease.

Announcement today that the court would sit four hours daily and recess Saturday and Sunday raised prospect of the trial's lasting until Winter.

The aged Fall appeared in fair condition at the trial today, although he is closely watched by his family and physicians because of a cold, according to his attorneys.

Sinclair and his family smiled as they entered court, the oil multimillionaire pausing to congratulate a cartoonist on a sketch he did of Sinclair yesterday.

Age of Progress

The history of the world consists mostly in the memory of those ages, quite few in number, in which some part of the world has risen above itself and burst into flower or fruit. We ourselves happen to live in the midst or possibly in the close of one such period. More change has probably taken place in daily life, in ideas, and in the general aspect of the earth during the last century than during any other four centuries since the Christian era; and this fact has tended to make us look on rapid progress as a normal condition of the human race, which it has never been.

The other evening while drawing pictures on a blackboard to amuse our little girl, I drew a fish globe containing two fish. I forgot to draw their fins, so when I asked her how she liked them, she said: "But, daddy, you forgot to make their oars." Exchange.

Sophistication

Bernice had some of her little friends in for luncheon the other day, and among other things she had olives. She offered them to Effie, who said she did not like them, whereupon Bernice replied in a superior fashion: "Oh, I didn't like 'em myself at first, but you must accumulate a taste for them."

"WIGGLE" TOO MUCH FOR OLD RUMANIA

The American charleston has outraged Bucharest and, as a result, public dancing is now virtually prohibited. Although Bucharest is notoriously liberal regarding personal conduct, the charlestonian wiggle proved too much for its sense of propriety. A howl went up that the new dance was threatening public morality. As a Rumanian earnestly explained, "the government realized the immorality of the modern dances and decided they should be heavily taxed." The tax amounts to some $35 per hour for each public dancing place. The cabarets could not persuade their patrons to cover this expense. The result is that, while professional dancers in modified birthday costume continue to delight the cabaret patrons, a man can no longer dance with his wife except at home in the parlor with the blinds drawn. But our informant assures us that this was not the intention of the Rumanian government; it only wished to get a good big profit out of the new immoral dances. Its only error was that it fixed the tax too high.

MONUMENT FOR BLUE LICKS BATTLEFIELD.

To Mark Site of Great Fight With Indians.

Carlisle, Ky.—Announcement is made by the Blue Licks Battlefield Monument commission, of which I. B. Ross of this city is secretary-treasurer, that a 40-foot high obelisk will be erected at Blue Licks, this county, where on August 19, 1782, the bloodiest battle between Indians and whites known to the "Dark and Bloody Ground" which became Kentucky was fought. Ten thousand dollars has already been voted for the monument to the early 200 pioneers who fell, dead or wounded, that day, and the memorial will be completed by August 19, next year, the one hundred forty-sixth anniversary of the battle, in which were slain or injured more men than any other general battle found in records of Indian days in this section of the country.

The obelisk will be of as severe a simplicity as the lives of the men it will commemorate. The shaft will be surmounted by the figure of a Kentucky pioneer, leaning on the famous long rifle which was introduced to the West by Daniel Boone and who fought at the Battle of Blue Licks.

The figure will face toward the Ohio river, across which finally fled the Indians after practically decimating the pioneer forces. So far as recalled here, the Battle of the Little Big Horn in which Custer and his men were massacred is the only one that approaches it in annals of Indian warfare.

Blue Licks, where the conflict occurred, is near the site of Blue Lick Springs, which 75 years ago was a watering place vying with Saratoga in popularity.

The site where the battle occurred has been overrun with weeds and all manner of underbrush, but in recent months some attention has been paid to it and it has been cleaned.

Rich finds in Indian arrowheads and tomahawks have been made there on the ground of the fight beneath which still sleep some of the pioneers killed that day. A great celebration was held there August 19, the one hundred forty-fifth anniversary of the battle, when tribute was paid to the settlers who fell there, and ceremonies dedicating the field to the memorial purpose took place.

Impressive Potentates

In no country in the world will one find more garish display in the way of dress than in India. Both men and women of the highest rank present the most gorgeous appearance when they are "all dolled up." Magnificent jewels are worn and no royal ruler in other lands can show more magnificent pearls than are worn by some of the potentates of India. The high and mighty of the land present a fearful and wonderful appearance on state occasions, and it is worth going far to be present on an occasion of this kind.

Claims 800 Miles an Hour for New Airplane Motor

London.—A speed of 800 miles an hour is claimed for a new airplane motor by C. H. Rosenthal of Dresden, Germany, who has just arrived in London to interest British capital in the motor. The inventor is Arno Boerner of Dresden.

The engine is described as having a "three chamber" motor cylinder, which, it is said, really converts a single cylinder into three, each with inlet, exhaust and spark plug, giving enormously increased power, which will enable use of an oversize propeller on an airplane.

"The existing dangers of a trans-Atlantic flight," Mr. Rosenthal said, "are air pockets and storms. If we could build an airplane powerful enough to rise above the zone where these occur the dangers would be eliminated and in the rarefied air of the upper levels immense speed is possible."

Mr. Rosenthal says the new motor would enable flights to America in four or five hours. Applied to automobiles, he says, the new engine would eliminate changes of gear, which could be obtained by cutting out one or more chambers of the triple cylinder.

Writes to Beethoven

A letter addressed to the composer Beethoven was received in Vienna the other day from a woman in the provinces. She wrote she had recently heard some of his music and was anxious to place her daughter under his tuition. The postal authorities delivered the letter at the house in which Beethoven lived and where he died 92 years ago. The concierge said no such man resided there, so the postman sent it to the dead letter office.

Time Measured by Candles

The Chinese, besides using water clocks, also invented joss-sticks, which burned uniformly. The joss-stick is somewhat similar to what good old King Alfred of England is said to have used way back in the eight hundreds. He was a great educator, and discovered that tallow candles could be used for dividing the time which he allowed his nobles in which to make complaints against each other.

AMUSEMENTS

Again Leo Maloney scores with a corking good western drama. This time it offers all that Maloney's consistently high standard of production has led one to expect of him. The man from Hardpan is a referee, happy-go-lucky drifter, played by Maloney. He learns from a newspaper that he has inherited a half interest in a ranch in a nearby town.

On the way to claim his inheritance he is robbed and left unconscious by the wayside. He is found and taken home by the very girl who owns the other half of the ranch, but he is unable to prove his identity because all means of identification have been stolen. When an escaped convict claims to be the heir, and plans to sell his share and clear out with the money, the plot gets very exciting especially as Maloney is clapped into jail.

Of course, he gets out, and the clever manner in which he does this does your heart good. The romance, too, is delightful. The hero falls in love with a girl's picture, and then finds she is owner of the other half of the ranch, so that when he is fighting for his rights, he is also battling for hers. Eugenia Gilbert is the girl and she's worth doing a lot of fighting for.

Paul Hurst gives an excellent performance as the villain and Rosa Gore is unforgettable as the old family servant whose bitterness over the terms of the will, which left her what she thought was a small sum for a lifetime service, furthered the plot. This is among the best of the very good western stories that Ford I. Beebe has written for Maloney and can be enjoyed at the Met theater today.

HARTMAN THEATER

At the Hartman theater, Columbus one of the year's foremost stars and plays will open a week's engagement next Monday night with matinee Wednesday and Saturday, when William A. Brady presents Patricia Collings in "What Every Woman Knows" by Sir James M. Barrie. No ordinary attraction this, but one that has broken records not only in New York with a run of 34 weeks, but in Boston and in Philadelphia, the latter conservative city contributing $73,000 to the box office in four weeks, a high mark for dramatic attractions. Obviously the question is: What's the appeal? It is this: Here is a girl you may have seen her in "Tarnish" or "Pollyanna" who was selected by Mr. Brady for the role of delightful Maggie Wylie in this comedy by Sir James. When the play, originally scheduled for a four weeks' run on Broadway, opened it was a triumph. It ran thru summer and fall, and on the closing of its New York run, requests from other cities were so numerous that Mr. Brady arranged a tour of the larger cities.

The Boston and Philadelphia engagements, attest to the fact that the play is the thing for its success outside New York has become a theatrical miracle. Patricia Collings, who stars in the play can be fairly ranked amongst the leading young American stars.

True, her starring vehicle affords wonderful material. Barrie never wrote a more delightful comedy than this simple comedy of domestic life. And that means considerable, for Sir James is the world's highest paid playwright. He wouldn't be, if he hadn't ability to entertain you better than any other writer. In this comedy he has taken a demure Scotch miss, and shows how easy it is to win a husband when you're a real woman. Which means, of course, having charm, and shrewdness, and downright common sense. Rare quality, this last. The girl helps to make her husband a success (and what wife hasn't?) and then sees him fall in love (or thinks he's falling—and what man knows the difference?) with a woman aristocratic and dumb.

Locating His Capital

My little brother Jimmy was walking uptown one day. He happened to have some money in a certain bank. While passing it he suddenly remarked to me: "That's where my money is tied up."—Chicago American

19octd2.Demand for Rat Skins
May Check the Pest

Europe has discovered a scheme for holding in check the prolific rat. Various industries have created a demand in London alone for rat skins that amounts to very nearly $200,000 a year, and there is every indication that the consumption of this material will increase. Book-binding, photograph frames, purses and thumbs for ladies' gloves are among the uses to which the skins are put.

After the passing of the rat act in Denmark some time ago, the great body of unemployed laborers took immediate advantage of the bill, and the individual rat-catcher's earnings averaged between $1.75 and $1.90 a day. It is estimated that the damage by rats in England alone amounts annually to many millions of dollars, so that any inducement to promote their capture should be encouraged as far as possible.

What may the engaged man give to his fiancée?

THE WHAT, WHEN AND HOW OF REMEMBRANCES... DON'T GUESS—ASK YOUR JEWELER

An engagement ring, of course! But what else, during the engagement period may an engaged man give to his fiancée — with propriety and good taste?

This is one of the many puzzling problems in the delicate and intricate art of proper gift-giving.

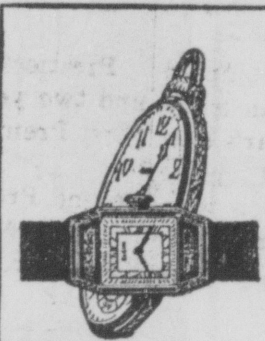

Certain kinds of gifts, including all forms of jewelry, the engaged man may bestow upon his bride-to-be as freely as his means and wishes sanction. Other types of gifts, such as wearing apparel or furniture, he cannot give at all, without breaching the canons of approved social practice and good form.

But there are other equally perplexing questions in the etiquette of gift-giving. What, for example, should a bridegroom give to his best man and ushers before the wedding ceremony?

And the bride to her brides-maids? What are the proper anniversary and seasonal gifts to friends and relatives?

When you have a delicate gift problem to solve—don't guess—go to an expert for authoritative counsel. See your jeweler. He is past-master in the science of gift selection. His consultations are free.

There is no finer gift than an Elgin Watch. Featured in a wide style variety and sold at prices ranging from $15 to $7500.

PUMPKIN SHOW THIS YEAR IS ONE GREAT BIG SUCCESS

Pickaway County's Best Crop, the Babies, Made a Most Creditable Showing—Fields, Orchards, Gardens, Kitchen and Shops All Made Contributions To the Success of the Big Show.

Thursday, the second day of the Pumpkin Show, was ideal and great crowds of people filled the streets. The old reliable Yellowbud band started things going by their playing and soon things began to stir. The show barkers picked up a little courage and advertised their attractions. The riding devices did not get much patronage owing to the fact that the air still being a little too chilly. The Ferris wheel is sixty feet high and is the largest that has ever been brought to this city.

The crowd seemed to be pleased by the eight free attractions the best best that Amusement Director T. D. Krinn has ever made.

In spite of the fact that this was a poor pumpkin year, there were 951 entries in this section.

In the best display class, J. B. Anderson won the $50 first prize with 318 entries and 49 distinct varieties of pumpkins and squashes. Second prize of $25 in his class went to Sam Anderson, with 256 entries of 44 distinct varieties. Third prize of $10 went to John Wells with 89 entries of five distinct varieties.

The first prize for largest pumpkin went to Christian Weller for an entry weighing 58 pounds. Last year's first weighed 98 pounds. Second prize was awarded to J. B. Anderson with an entry weighing 48½ pounds and third to Sam Anderson with a 45½ pound pumpkin.

In the big squash class which was won last year by J. M. Grabill with a 248 pound squash, was won this year by John Wells with a 56 pound entry. W. B. Grabill took the second prize with a 51 pound squash, and third prize went to C. M. Beatty with a 39 pound squash.

Crookneck squashes were a new department this year and the prizes were distributed as follows: Sam Anderson, first, 25 pounds; G. M. Newton, second, with an entry that would not quite tip the scales at 25 pounds, being only a few ounces less than the winner of first. Third prize went to J. B. Anderson with 23 pounds in weight.

In the freak pumpkin, squash and vegetable display, people just begin to realize what is desired in the way of entries, but this display won the largest number of individual entries in the section. Ursula McMullen won the first prize of $10 on an entry of sweet potatoes in which a number of individual sweet potatoes were grown among each other so that it was impossible to separate them without breaking them.

Second prize went to Paul Wallace on a freak Irish potato. Third went to Addison Leist for a pumpkin that looked like it had a bad case of contracted stomach, due to eating green apples or cucumbers or something. Fourth prize was awarded to Alfred Todd on a Siamese twin potato.

The displays in these sections required the entire square between Pinkney and High streets on Court and the Columbus Dispatch was right in predicting that in spite of all reports to the contrary, Circleville Pumpkin Show would bring out the Pumpkins and the people.

The baby parade, staged to march at 2 o'clock was a little tardy in starting. The parade of the innocents always attracts crowds, and as it passed along the line of march was heartily encored. The parade was led by Chairman George M. Fitzpatrick and his assistant chairmen; J. D. Hummel, T. F. Jeffries, Hervey Sweyer, Senet Cryder, M. C. Warren, Lawrence Johnson, T. D. Krinn, Fred R. Nicholas and Guy Rader.

A platoon of police was in the lead with the Liberty band of Lancaster and the Yellowbud band heading the second division. The Boy Scouts did yeoman service guarding the children as they passed across intersections. The parade was most creditable as there were many beautiful children and some most artistically decorated buggies and play outfits. The number of children and outfits was reduced by the fear of the infantile paralysis.

(Below) Mrs. A. S. Rockwell.

Richland Center, Wis., has discovered a novel means for supporting its school band, says the Conn Music Center. The Band Mothers' association, said to be the only organization of its kind in existence, furnishes whatever moral and financial support the school band might need.

The Band Mothers' association was organized about three years ago. The mothers help to raise the money for uniforms and to buy some of the larger instruments. About 100 mothers are now members.

That the co-operation of the mothers has had a most salutary effect on the membership of the band is to be seen from the record of the Richland Center high school band, which for four successive years has won first place in Class A in the annual state school band tournament.

Mr. Peter Michelsen is bandmaster of the Richland Center, Wis., public schools and Mrs. A. S. Rockwell is president of the Band Mothers' association.

More Attention to Music Urged

C. R. Tuttle Would Have Schools Prepare Young Musicians for Life.

Instrumental music should be placed in the public school system as a vocational subject with full credit, was the emphatic declaration of Colston K.
Tuttle, director of the Marion (Ind.)
High School band, one of the most artistic playing school bands of the country, to a query of the Conn Music Center as to what place music should occupy on the school program.

"There are thousands of children in our public schools not yet fourteen years of age who have marked musical ability and who wish to make music their life work," said Mr. Tuttle. "For such youngsters there is only one solution. If we as a nation are to progress along educational lines, we must prepare a four-year music course and employ competent, experienced musicians as teachers.

"American children have more agile minds and learn more readily than those of other countries, yet the world's indictment of our musicians is that they are not thorough. A practical four-year vocational music course in our public schools should include such subjects as English, German, French, Italian, history of music, harmony, practical arranging, physics (regarding sound) and a general knowledge of all instruments, with special training on one. No student should be allowed to enter this course unless he has had at least two years' preparatory work on his chosen instrument and has shown marked ability. Such a course, well directed, will equip the graduate with a thorough foundation of the essentials and give him a much broader vision of the colossal magnitude of music, thereby making him a more serious student throughout his entire life.

"Such a vocational course, I am sure, is practical and one that would be of incalculable value to the cultural side of America in the next generation."

First Grade School Band Scores Great Success

"Start 'em in young," is the slogan of a Freeport (Ill.) public school, where a first grade school band is attracting much attention, reports the Conn Music Center. The diminutive players are in demand for many public functions in and around Freeport.

The band was organized recently by Miss Louise Place, a first grade teacher. She had great care in selecting the personnel of the young musical organization, as the child ages must be taken into consideration and must have the respect of all other members.
These two conditions are regarded as essential to membership in the band.

Rehearsals are begun with a good march. The instruments used are the cornet, saxophone, tuba, clarinet and the trombone.

LOANS UP TO $500

Big game hunters could hardly do without dogs in the great hunting districts. The hunter sounds a call, as night draws near, that can be heard for many miles in the stillness of the woods, and the hounds give up the trail and come crashing and breaking thru the underbrush—back to the camp in a great dense forest to be fed and cared for.

But money is just as important to us here in this densely populated and refined community of automobiles, fur coats and coal bins, as dogs are to those hunters in the wild lands of bear, moose and cougar. And The City Loan is here to see that it answers your command.

When you want money sound a call that can be heard down our way.

So what could be more fitting than the stork's recent act in presenting Mrs. Hansen with a girl and Mrs. Scott a boy born on the same day?

ESCAPED PRISONERS CONVICTS HELP FIND
Two Who Fled From Truck Enroute To Quarry Are In Solitary Confinement.

John Emerine and Carl Davis, penitentiary prisoners who were recaptured in a cornfield, Tuesday, within an hour after they had staged a break for liberty, were in solitary confinement, Wednesday.

The escape, according to Warden Thomas, occurred while the two prisoners, Davis, aged 38, a "lifer," and Emerine, an inmate since 1918, were enroute to the prison quarry in McKinley avenue where they were to do some tin repair work.

They were in a truck and jumped when it passed beneath a bridge in McKinley avenue, near the prison quarry. Riding with them was another prisoner,

BULB SHOULD BE PLANTED NOT BURIED

Ought Too Be Right Side Up
and Not To Deep—Don't
Send It To China.

Any time between now and the middle of November is bulb planting time.

"When planting bulbs," suggests Victor H. Ries, extension specialist in floriculture at the Ohio State university, "it's always a good idea, in the first place to plant them right side up. They grow better that way. Secondly, don't plant them more than twice their depth below the surface of the soil.

"I recall, as a child, a man who planted bulbs for us so deep that some of them never did come up. They were more than a foot below the surface of the soil, and they were upside down. The idea is not to bury bulbs, but merely to plant them."

For winter bloom in the house bulbs can be potted during the fall and buried in the pots about a foot deep in moist sawdust or cinders or soil, so they won't dry out or freeze. They may be taken up and brought into the house any time during the winter or early spring and forced into bloom.

Since it takes from eight to ten weeks to produce satisfactory roots on most bulbs, Mr. Ries points out, they should be left buried for at least that length of time. The one exception to this rule is the paper white narcissus, which grows well in gravel and water.

"Be sure to buy from a reliable dealer," the specialist concludes. "When bulbs are advertised at unusually low prices, there is usually a reason for it, as we sometimes find out when we try to get them to bloom."

KEEP RECORD OF EXPENSES THRU MONTH

Personal Thrift, Like Business Efficiency is Largely a Matter of Method.

"I can't understand why I am always running behind in my personal financial affairs," a man who earns a handsome salary said to the writer some time ago. When asked if he kept a record of his expenditures, he replied that he was too busy to be bothered with such details. "Try the experiment for a month," suggested the writer, "and you will have the answer to your question."

The plan was tried. Every penny of expense was jotted down and at the end of the month the man found that he had spent about $100 more than he had thought was his custom. That explained the reason why he was always in a quandary about his personal affairs.

When he was brought face to face with conditions he began to change his habits, and his situation improved in like proportion.

There are no doubt many such persons as the one referred to who constantly are running behind and cannot understand why.

Figures do not lie. You can't spend your money and have it. If you want to spend constructively and save wisely you must eliminate the little wastes.

Above everything else you must know what you are doing. You cannot build yourself up on the shifting sands of ignorance or indifference.

It may seem like a waste of time and effort to keep a strict record of every penny you spend, but it is the best method of getting on the right track in the management of your personal affairs.

Personal thrift, like business efficiency, is a matter of method and system. It must be foundationed on complete knowledge of one's affairs.

"Safety First"

Helen and her mother spent the summer on a farm and Helen was heartbroken when one Sunday her pet rooster had to give up his life because the minister was coming to dinner. Some time later she saw the minister coming to call, and she ran to the barn shooting the chickens, and said: "Get in quick; here comes the man that ate your father."

POMERENE PROMINENT PROTESTANT

ENDORSES CANDIDACY OF AL SMITH FOR PRESIDENT

The Democratic Nomination Should By All Means Be Given the Governor of New York—His Religion, He Claims, Should Not Be a Bar To Obtain the Highest Office In the Gift of the Republic—The Statement Virtually Removes Ohio's Son From Consideration In the Race.

Atlee Pomerene is out in a public declaration in which he holds that Al Smith's religion should not be a bar to his candidacy for the presidency. In a signed article, published in the current issue of the North American Review, the former Ohio senator aggressively espouses the right of the New York governor to run for the Democratic presidential nomination. He hits hard at the religious intolerance of those Democrats who would bar Smith from the nomination because he happens to be a Catholic. Pomerene is now in Washington as one of the special government counsel prosecuting Albert F. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair in the oil fraud cases.

Unusual significance is seen in the Ohioan's endorsement of Smith, not only because Pomerene is a Protestant but because he himself, on account of the recent United States supreme court decision giving the government a sweeping victory in the civil oil cases, is being increasingly discussed as a prospective nominee for president. Concerning the bearing of Smith's religious faith on his qualifications for the presidency, Pomerene says:

"We are told that he is a Catholic. He admits it. What of it? Has his religion made him less honorable as a citizen, or less capable as a governor?"

"Who among those who oppose the nomination or election of a Catholic or a Jew to high office would not resent the action of a Catholic or a Jew who should oppose a candidate because he is an Episcopalian, a Presbyterian, a Methodist, or a Baptist? If a Catholic or a Jew were to insist that no one should be eligible to high office unless he accepted Catholicism or Judaism what a wailing and gnashing of teeth we would witness."

"In every national crisis from the revolution to the World war no citizen has even thought of questioning the loyalty of his fellow Americans because of differences in religious belief. When the World war was on, did any mother fear for the safety of her son, who was on the battle front with a Catholic on one side and a Jew on the other? If they were good enough to fight our country's battles in time of war let us not deny them the right to be candidate for office in times of peace."

Custom Is Old One

The custom of drinking to health success to undertakings at banquets dates back to the invasion of the Romans. The word toast appears to have originated from the practice of putting bits of toast in the wine, the guest partaking of such a sip with the draught of wine as soon as the felicitation had passed the lips.

to the Democratic national convention of 1920 and 1924 Pomerene strongly opposed the candidacy of William G. McAdoo. In both conventions he supported Ohio's favorite son, James M. Cox. When Cox withdrew from the contest at the New York convention Pomerene switched his support to John W. Davis, who finally was nominated.

Pomerene's support of Smith's right to run for the 1928 nomination is expected to give increased impetus to the Smith candidacy, especially in Ohio. At the same time it is expected to check the anti-Smith movement of a number of Democratic leaders of the south. Headed by Senator Furnifold M. Simmons of North Carolina, who are trying to crystallize sentiment for Governor Vic Donahey of Ohio.

Some politicians see in this situation a probability that Donahey will be named for vice president on a ticket to be headed by Smith.

PLANS DARING VOYAGE

This young motor boat builder of Constance, Switzerland, named Joerg, has constructed by hand a small motorboat in which he plans to sail from Constance to New York. He claims the discovery of a new fuel, the ingredients of which have been kept secret and which, he expects, will propel his boat across the Atlantic without refueling.

Official Listening in Approved in France

Paris.—Government employees listen in on presumably private telephone conversations in France, but not from curiosity. They merely want to be sure that the telephone is working all right. They seldom sit in on an entire conversation, contenting themselves with sufficient snatches to show whether the communication is clear. From the many complaints one hears it may be assumed they are more easily satisfied with the clarity of the line than the ordinary subscriber.

When the royalist leader, Leon Daudet, was released from prison by a trick telephone call, it was explained by the embarrassed government that the inspectors who listen in on telephone conversations were at luncheon at the time.

This aroused the League of the Rights of Man. They wrote to the minister of commerce to inquire whether telephone conversations were no longer secret. The minister explained that they were, but that in each exchange was an "observation table," whose occupants cut into conversations to test the quality of the service.

Linked Football With Crime in Old Days

London.—The official opening of the football season was held without fear of the law such as prevailed in years gone by.

In the year 1314, Edward II forbade the game and in 1389 Richard II passed a new act for its suppression, while Henry IV, Henry VIII and Elizabeth all tried to stem its increasing popularity by increasing penalties.

These laws were frequently enforced against delinquents and it is recorded that at Dublin in 1579, one Denis Wogan was fined £10 and jailed for a week because he kicked off at a local football game.

Despite the laws, however, many games were played every year and an old record says that "thanks to the sturdy apprentices the streets of London were full of footballs."

ONE HUNDRED BUSHEL YIELD CENTURY AGO

Father of J. S. Leaming Sr. Astounded Natives Near Cincinnati In 1827.

A hundred-bushel yield of corn to the acre was first achieved in Ohio exactly 100 years ago, available records as reported in "The Agriculture of Ohio" reveal. The producer of this record yield was Christopher Leaming, father of the originator of the widely known variety, Leaming dent corn.

No exact comparison with present day yields is possible, since in those days probably no allowance was made for moisture content, nor was the yield computed on the basis of dry shelled corn. Aside from that, here is the story as told by J. S. Leaming Sr., in an account of corn culture in 1826:

"When my father (Christopher Leaming), two brothers and myself went to the bottoms to raise corn, in the year, 1827, it was common among corn raisers to say of others' fields that they could take hold of the wild cucumber or peavines at one corner or a five acre lot and shake all the corn in it."

"My father took long strides ahead in corn culture; plowed 2 or 3 inches deeper, cultivated well, cut out all the weeds at laying-by time, which with him was when the corn was in full silk, consequently did not have to call in the aid of horse and brush at gathering time, and as a result raised double the amount per acre, and with the improved seed he introduced and planted in the season of 1827, sold off a 10-acre lot his two-thirds, being 6 2-3 acres, 693 bushels, averaging 104 bushels per acre."

"It went all over the bottoms and astonished everyone along the Miami and was the talk and praise of all the landowners; caused envy with many of the tenants, but resulted in great good in stimulating others to raise as much as Leaming had."

SHORTS AND MIDLINGS

Fifteen bushels of corn an acre is the yield one Ottawa county farmer expects this year as a result of corn borer infestation, 10 borers to the stalk. Last year he got 80 bushels an acre in an adjoining field.

Says Sam! A radio receiving set that could be fitted to plow handles and corn harvesters might help in these days of world series baseball and intercollegiate football games.

Thousands of acres of waste land in Ohio cry aloud for reforestation. Your county agent or the forestry department at the Ohio agricultural experiment station, Wooster, can tell you how to get the trees.

It took 37 bushels of oats an acre to make the oats crop pay this year, Putnam county farm records indicate.

Farmwives spend about 70 per cent of their time in the kitchen, not always because they want to, but often because the kitchen is inefficiently arranged.

Says the gardener at this time of year: I come to plant bulbs not to bury them.

Costly Orchids

Nearly all the orchids found in Burma can be grown with a little care and attention in private gardens. There is one exception, a sweet-smelling species called tazin by the Burmese, and which is usually brought to market in Christmas week in Rangoon. It only seems to flower in the most malarious and least frequented localities, and at a time of the year which is the tiger's mating season, and when they are most dangerous to human beings. It is in great demand by Burmese, and sells for its weight in silver.

SINCLAIR AND ALBERT FALL BEING TRIED

For Conspiracy To Defraud
Government In the Teapot Dome Lease of Oil Lands.

Washington, Oct. 19.—(UP.)—The government won its first legal skirmish in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial today when, over defense objection, it obtained admission of Fall's famous letter of July, 1921, to E. L. Doheny, California oil magnate, asserting that he (Fall) then was in complete charge of the government oil reserves.

The victory came after a morning in which Martin Littleton, defense chief, had told the jury former Secretary of Interior Fall and Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, would prove they were acting in interest of the national defense in signing the Teapot Dome lease.

Littleton had declared he would show Fall received no bonds from Sinclair after granting the lease to Sinclair, as the prosecution charged.

Insertion of the Fall letter was considered an initial blow to the defense, since the defense had indicated it would prove that others than Fall were responsible for the naval oil policy which finally resulted in turning the Dome over to Sinclair with the understanding that he should furnish some fuel oil to the navy in return.

Justice Butler of the U. S. Supreme Court, in one of his decisions annulling the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills leases, had characterized the letter as written in "an exultant mood."

Littleton in an advance summation of the case for the two noted defendants, did the following:

Credited Admiral J. K. Robinson, naval oil chief, as originator of the oil leasing plan under which Teapot Dome and Elk Hills were leased.

Said Secretary of the Navy Denby knew of every step in the lease negotiations.

Said Sinclair never owned a share of stock in the Continental Trading Co., the alleged source of $230,500 of Liberty bonds found in Fall's possession following the execution of the Teapot lease.

Said that Sinclair's $25,000 payment to Fall in 1923 was made in Liberty bonds "because bonds were easier to send than a check."

(This payment was in connection with Fall's trip to Russia as counsel for Sinclair, it is claimed).

Through Littleton's summation ran the clear indication that Fall and Sinclair intend, partly at least, to claim patriotic motives as actuating the deal whereby Teapot Dome passed from the government's hands to Sinclair's Mammoth Oil Co.

Littleton indicated clearly the defense intends to pass from Fall to Admiral Robinson and the then Secretary of Navy Denby much of the responsibility for the deal. It was a transaction he said in furtherance of the navy's defense plans. He painted Fall and Sinclair as aiding these plans by opening a way—with navy acquiescence—to furnish fuel oil for battle craft in exchange for the crude oil of Teapot Dome. The deal, he said had not profited Sinclair anything.

Littleton lifted the curtain on a secret meeting of the navy general board where, he said, Admiral Robinson had told of the oil exchange plan of saving "royalty oil for emergency use of the nation in time of peril."

Harking back to that conference of New Year's, 1922, on Fall's New Mexico ranch, Littleton said the defense would show that it was primarily to discuss Osage Indian oil lands, although Sinclair did inquire if Teapot Dome was to be leased.

After Littleton concluded, the government started presentation of its case by calling G. W. Holland, U. S. Geological Survey lawyer, who identified President Wilson's executive order of April 30, 1915, creating the naval oil reserves, including the Teapot Dome, Wyo., lease here involved, and other records.

Captain H. A. Stuart, U. S. navy oil reserve chief now, and also in the Wilson administration before Admiral Robinson replaced him on Secretary Denby's order, was questioned.

After Stuart identified a single paper, L. F. Martin of the U. S. comptroller general's office, produced the original of the famous lease—signed by Fall and Denby for the government and by Sinclair and some of his officials for the Mammoth Oil Co.

The document was so badly worn that a photostatic copy was filed in evidence.

Assistant Secretary of the Interior E. C. Finney, of Kansas, a major figure in the lease negotiations was the next government witness.

"After the 1921 Harding executive order did you talk with Secretary Fall about the reserves?" Roberts asked.

"Yes," Finney said. "I suggested Dr. Mendenhall (Interior Department oil expert) to take care of the reserves. Mendenhall was later in 1921 relieved and Fall told me he was disappointed in him."

Prosecutor Roberts attempted to bring out that Fall was entirely in charge of making oil leases at the time of the Teapot lease, but defense attorneys objected.

Justice Siddons overruled the objection and the first "exception" was noted by the defense—a preparation for appeal to higher courts on grounds of error, if Fall and Sinclair are convicted.

The Littleton version of the meeting at Fall's ranch is substantially the same as the government's except that the government insists that at the New Mexican ranch of Fall the two men began the alleged plot which, the government claims, ended with transfer of more than $200,000 in Liberty bonds from Sinclair to a kinsman of Fall in connection with the lease.

Announcement today that the court would sit four hours daily and recess Saturday and Sunday raised prospect of the trial's lasting until Winter.

The aged Fall appeared in fair condition at the trial today, although he is closely watched by his family and physicians because of a cold, according to his attorneys.

Sinclair and his family smiled as they entered court, the oil multimillionaire pausing to congratulate a cartoonist on a sketch he did of Sinclair yesterday.

Age of Progress

The history of the world consists mostly in the memory of those ages, quite few in number, in which some part of the world has risen above itself and burst into flower or fruit. We ourselves happen to live in the midst of possibly in the close of one such period. More change has probably taken place in daily life, in ideas, and in the general aspect of the earth during the last century than during any other four centuries since the Christian era; and this fact has tended to make us look on rapid progress as a normal condition of the human race, which it has never been.

The other evening while drawing pictures on a blackboard to amuse our little girl, I drew a fish globe containing two fish. I forgot to draw their fins, so when I asked her how she liked them, she said: "But, daddy, you forgot to make their oars." Exchange.

Sophistication

Bernice had some of her little friends in for luncheon the other day, and among other things she had olives. She offered them to Effie, who said she did not like them, whereupon Bernice replied in a superior fashion: "Oh, I didn't like 'em myself at first, but you must accumulate a taste for them."

"WIGGLE" TOO MUCH FOR OLD RUMANIA

The American charleston has outraged Bucharest and, as a result, public dancing is now virtually prohibited. Although Bucharest is notoriously liberal regarding personal conduct, the charlestonian wiggle proved too much for its sense of propriety. A howl went up that the new dance was threatening public morality. As a Rumanian earnestly explained, "the government realized the immorality of the modern dances and decided they should be heavily taxed." The tax amounts to some $35 per hour for each public dancing place. The cabarets could not persuade their patrons to cover this expense. The result is that, while professional dancers in modified birthday costume continue to delight the cabaret patrons, a man can no longer dance with his wife except at home in the parlor with the blinds drawn. But our informant assures us that this was not the intention of the Rumanian government; it only wished to get a good big profit out of the new immoral dances. Its only error was that it fixed the tax too high.

MONUMENT FOR BLUE LICKS BATTLEFIELD

To Mark Site of Great Fight With Indians.

Carlisle, Ky.—Announcement is made by the Blue Licks Battlefield Monument commission, of which I. B. Ross of this city is secretary-treasurer, that a 40-foot high obelisk will be erected at Blue Licks, this county, where on August 19, 1782, the bloodiest battle between Indians and whites known to the "Dark and Bloody Ground" which became Kentucky was fought. Ten thousand dollars has already been voted for the monument to the early 200 pioneers who fell, dead or wounded, that day, and the memorial will be completed by August 19, next year, the one hundred forty-sixth anniversary of the battle, in which were slain or injured more men than any other general battle found in records of Indian days in this section of the country.

The obelisk will be of as severe a simplicity as the lives of the men it will commemorate. The shaft will be surmounted by the figure of a Kentucky pioneer, leaning on the famous long rifle which was introduced to the West by Daniel Boone and who fought at the Battle of Blue Licks. The figure will face toward the Ohio river, across which finally fled the Indians after practically decimating the pioneer forces. So far as recalled here, the Battle of the Little Big Horn in which Custer and his men were massacred is the only one that approaches it in annals of Indian warfare.

Blue Licks, where the conflict occurred, is near the site of Blue Lick Springs, which 75 years ago was a watering place vying with Saratoga in popularity.

The site where the battle occurred has been overrun with weeds and all manner of underbrush, but in recent months some attention has been paid to it and it has been cleaned.

Rich finds in Indian arrowheads and tomahawks have been made there on the ground of the fight beneath which still sleep some of the pioneers killed that day. A great celebration was held there August 19, the one hundred forty-fifth anniversary of the battle, when tribute was paid to the settlers who fell there, and ceremonies dedicating the field to the memorial purpose took place.

Impressive Potentates

In no country in the world will one find more garish display in the way of dress than in India. Both men and women of the highest rank present the most gorgeous appearance when they are "all dolled up." Magnificent jewels are worn and no royal ruler in other lands can show more magnificent pearls than are worn by some of the potentates of India. The high and mighty of the land present a fearful and wonderful appearance on state occasions, and it is worth going far to be present on an occasion of this kind.

Claims 800 Miles an Hour for New Airplane Motor

London.—A speed of 800 miles an hour is claimed for a new airplane motor by C. H. Rosenthal of Dresden, Germany, who has just arrived in London to interest British capital in the motor. The inventor is Arno Boerner of Dresden.

The engine is described as having a "three chamber" motor cylinder, which, it is said, really converts a single cylinder into three, each with inlet, exhaust and spark plug, giving enormously increased power, which will enable use of an oversize propeller on an airplane.

"The existing dangers of a trans-Atlantic flight," Mr. Rosenthal said, "are air pockets and storms. If we could build an airplane powerful enough to rise above the zone where these occur the dangers would be eliminated and in the rarefied air of the upper levels immense speed is possible."

Mr. Rosenthal says the new motor would enable flights to America in four or five hours. Applied to automobiles, he says, the new engine would eliminate changes of gear, which could be obtained by cutting out one or more chambers of the triple cylinder.

Writes to Beethoven

A letter addressed to the composer Beethoven was received in Vienna the other day from a woman in the provinces. She wrote she had recently heard some of his music and was anxious to place her daughter under his tuition. The postal authorities delivered the letter at the house in which Beethoven lived and where he died 92 years ago. The concierge said no such man resided there, so the postman sent it to the dead letter office.

Time Measured by Candles

The Chinese, besides using water clocks, also invented joss-sticks, which burned uniformly. The joss-stick is somewhat similar to what good old King Alfred of England is said to have used way back in the eight hundreds. He was a great educator, and discovered that tallow candles could be used for dividing the time which he allowed his nobles in which to make complaints against each other.

Again Leo Maloney scores with a corking good western drama. This time it offers all that Maloney's consistently high standard of production has led one to expect of him. The man from Hardpan is a referee, happy-go-lucky drifter, played by Maloney. He learns from a newspaper that he has inherited a half interest in a ranch in a nearby town.

On the way to claim his inheritance he is robbed and left unconscious by the wayside. He is found and taken home by the very girl who owns the other half of the ranch, but he is unable to prove his identity because all means of identification have been stolen. When an escaped convict claims to be the heir, and plans to sell his share and clear out with the money, the plot gets very exciting especially as Maloney is clapped into jail.

Of course, he gets out, and the clever manner in which he does this does your heart good. The romance, too, is delightful. The hero falls in love with a girl's picture, and then finds she is owner of the other half of the ranch, so that when he is fighting for his rights, he is also battling for hers. Eugenia Gilbert is the girl and she's worth doing a lot of fighting for.

Paul Hurst gives an excellent performance as the villain and Rosa Gore is unforgettable as the old family servant whose bitterness over the terms of the will, which left her what she thought was a small sum for a lifetime service, furthered the plot. This is among the best of the very good western stories that Ford I. Beebe has written for Maloney and can be enjoyed at the Met theater today.

HARTMAN THEATER

At the Hartman theater, Columbus one of the year's foremost stars and plays will open a week's engagement next Monday night with matinee Wednesday and Saturday, when William A. Brady presents Patricia Collings in "What Every Woman Knows" by Sir James M. Barrie. No ordinary attraction this, but one that has broken records not only in New York with a run of 34 weeks, but in Boston and in Philadelphia, the latter conservative city contributing $73,000 to the box office in four weeks, a high mark for dramatic attractions.

Obviously the question is: What's the appeal? It is this: Here is a girl you may have seen her in "Tarnish" or "Pollyanna" who was selected by Mr. Brady for the role of delightful Maggie Wylie in this comedy by Sir James. When the play, originally scheduled for a four weeks' run on Broadway, opened it was a triumph. It ran thru summer and fall, and on the closing of its New York run, requests from other cities were so numerous that Mr. Brady arranged a tour of the larger cities.

The Boston and Philadelphia engagements, attest to the fact that the play is the thing for its success outside New York has become a theatrical miracle. Patricia Collings, who stars in the play can be fairly ranked amongst the leading young American stars.

True, her starring vehicle affords wonderful material. Barrie never wrote a more delightful comedy than this simple comedy of domestic life. And that means considerable, for Sir James is the world's highest paid playwright. He wouldn't be, if he hadn't ability to entertain you better than any other writer. In this comedy he has taken a demure Scotch miss, and shows how easy it is to win a husband when you're a real woman. Which means, of course, having charm, and shrewdness, and downright common sense. Rare quality, this last. The girl helps to make her husband a success (and what wife hasn't?) and then sees him fall in love (or thinks he's falling—and what man knows the difference?) with a woman aristocratic and dumb.

Albert Frazier, 19octd2. Proprietor.Demand for Rat Skins*May Check the Pest

Europe has discovered a scheme for holding in check the prolific rat. Various industries have created a demand in London alone for rat skins that amounts to very nearly $200,000 a year, and there is every indication that the consumption of this material will increase. Book-binding, photograph frames, purses and thumb for ladies' gloves are among the uses to which the skins are put.

After the passing of the rat act in Denmark some time ago, the great body of unemployed laborers took immediate advantage of the bill, and the individual rat-catcher's earnings averaged between $1.75 and $1.90 a day. It is estimated that the damage by rats in England alone amounts annually to many millions of dollars, so that any incentive to promote their capture should be encouraged as far as possible.

THE WHAT, WHEN AND HOW OF REMEMBRANCES...DON'T GUESS—ASK YOUR JEWELER

An engagement ring, of course! But what else, during the engagement period may an engaged man give to his fiancée—with propriety and good taste?

This is one of the many puzzling problems in the delicate and intricate art of proper gift-giving.

Certain kinds of gifts, including all forms of jewelry, the engaged man may bestow upon his bride-to-be as freely as his means and wishessanction. Other types of gifts, such as wearing apparel or furniture, he cannot give at all, without breaching the canons of approved social practice and good form.

But there are other equally perplexing questions in the etiquette of gift-giving. What, for example, should a bridegroom give to his best man and ushers before the wedding ceremony?

And the bride to her brides-maids? What are the proper anniversary and seasonal gifts to friends and relatives?

When you have a delicate gift problem to solve—don't guess—go to an expert for authoritative counsel. See your jeweler. He is past-master in the science of gift selection. His consultations are free.

PUMPKIN SHOW THIS YEAR IS ONE GREAT BIG SUCCESS

Pickaway County's Best Crop, the Babies, Made a Most Creditable Showing—Fields, Orchards, Gardens, Kitchen and Shops All Made Contributions To the Success of the Big Show.

Thursday, the second day of the Pumpkin Show, was ideal and great crowds of people filled the streets. The old reliable Yellowbud band started things going by their playing and soon things began to stir. The show barkers picked up a little courage and advertised their attractions. The riding devices did not get much patronage owing to the fact that the air still being a little too chilly. The Ferris wheel is sixty feet high and is the largest that has ever been brought to this city.

The crowd seemed to be pleased by the eight free attractions the best best that Amusement Director T. D. Krinn has ever made.

In spite of the fact that this was a poor pumpkin year, there were 951 entries in this section.

In the best display class, J. B. Anderson won the $50 first prize with 318 entries and 49 distinct varieties of pumpkins and squashes. Second prize of $25 in his class went to Sam Anderson, with 256 entries of 44 distinct varieties. Third prize of $10 went to John Wells with 89 entries of five distinct varieties.

The first prize for largest pumpkin went to Christian Weller for an entry weighing 58 pounds. Last year's first weighed 98 pounds. Second prize was awarded to J. B. Anderson with an entry, weighing 48 1/2 pounds and third to Sam Anderson with a 45 1/2 pound pumpkin.

In the big squash class which was won last year by J. M. Grabill with a 248 pound squash, was won this year by John Wells with a 56 pound entry. W. B. Grabill took the second prize with a 51 pound squash, and third prize went to C. M. Beatty with a 39 pound squash.

Crookneck squashes were a new department this year and the prizes were distributed as follows: Sam Anderson, first, 25 pounds; G. M. Newton, second, with an entry that would not quite tip the scales at 25 pounds, being only a few ounces less than the winner of first. Third prize went to J. B. Anderson with 23 pounds in weight.

In the freak pumpkin, squash and vegetable display, people just begin to realize what is desired in the way of entries, but this display won the largest number of individual entries in the section. Ursula McMullen won the first prize of $10 on an entry of sweet potatoes in which a number of individual sweet potatoes were grown among each other so that it was impossible to separate them without breaking them.

Second prize went to Paul Wallace on a freak Irish potato. Third went to Addison Leist for a pumpkin that looked like it had a bad case of contracted stomach, due to eating green apples or cucumbers or something. Fourth prize was awarded to Alfred Todd on a Siamese twin potato.

The displays in these sections required the entire square between Pinkney and High streets on Court and the Columbus Dispatch was right in predicting that in spite of all reports to the contrary, Circleville Pumpkin Show would bring out the Pumpkins and the people.

The baby parade, staged to march at 2 o'clock was a little tardy in starting. The parade of the innocents always attracts crowds, and as it passed along the line of march was heartily encored. The parade was led by Chairman George M. Fitzpatrick and his assistant chairmen; J. D. Hummel, T. F. Jeffries, Hervey Swayer, Senet Cryder, M. C. Warren, Lawrence Johnson, T. D. Krinn, Fred R. Nicholas and Guy Rader.

A platoon of police was in the lead with the Liberty band of Lancaster and the Yellowbud band heading the second division. The Boy Scouts did yeoman service guarding the children as they passed across intersections. The parade was most creditable as there were many beautiful children and some most artistically decorated buggies and play outfits. The number of children and outfits was reduced by the fear of the infantile paralysis.

Richland Center, Wis., has discovered a novel means for supporting its school band, says the Conn Music Center. The Band Mothers' association, said to be the only organization of its kind in existence, furnishes whatever moral and financial support the school band might need.

The Band Mothers' association was organized about three years ago. The mothers help to raise the money for uniforms and to buy some of the larger instruments. About 100 mothers are now members.

That the co-operation of the mothers has had a most salutary effect on the membership of the band is to be seen from the record of the Richland Center high school band, which for four successive years has won first place in Class A in the annual state school band tournament.

Mr. Peter Michelsen is bandmaster of the Richland Center, Wis., public schools and Mrs. A. S. Rockwell is president of the Band Mothers' association.

More Attention to Music Urged

C. R. Tuttle Would Have Schools Prepare Young Musicians for Life.

Instrumental music should be placed in the public school system as a vocational subject with full credit, was the emphatic declaration of Colston R. Tuttle, director of the Marion (Ind.) High School band, one of the most artistic playing school bands of the country, to a query of the Conn Music Center as to what place music should occupy on the school program.

"There are thousands of children in our public schools not yet fourteen years of age who have marked musical ability and who wish to make music their life work," said Mr. Tuttle. "For such youngsters there is only one solution. If we as a nation are to progress along educational lines, we must prepare a four-year music course and employ competent, experienced musicians as teachers."

"American children have more agile minds and learn more readily than those of other countries, yet the world's indictment of our musicians is that they are not thorough. A practical four-year vocational music course in our public schools should include such subjects as English, German, French, Italian, history of music, harmony, practical arranging, physics (regarding sound) and a general knowledge of all instruments, with special training on one. No student should be allowed to enter this course unless he has had at least two years' preparatory work on his chosen instrument and has shown marked ability. Such a course, well directed, will equip the graduate with a thorough foundation of the essentials and give him a much broader vision of the colossal magnitude of music, thereby making him a more serious student throughout his entire life."

"Start 'em in young," is the slogan of a Freeport (Ill.) public school, where a first grade school band is attracting much attention, reports the Conn Music Center. The diminutive players are in demand for many public functions in and around Freeport.

The band was organized recently by Miss Louise Place, a first grade teacher. She had great care in selecting the personnel of the band, making the selection, as she said, after much deliberation, as the children must be able to play and must also have the respect of all other members. These two conditions are regarded as essential to membership in the band.

Rehearsals are begun with a good march. The instruments used are the cornet, saxophone, tuba, clarinet and the trombone.

UNCLE SAM LAVISH

Coolidge Says Nation Has Been Kind to Its War Veterans.

Washington, Oct. 19.—(UP.)—The United States has taken better care of its war veterans than any other nation, President Coolidge declared here today in a speech dedicating a statue to General George Gordon Meade, commander of the victorious Union army at the Civil War Battle of Gettysburg.

"We have not only been lavish in public honors which have been conferred upon our veterans, but we have also bestowed upon them pensions and gratuities, reaching down to every man in the ranks, with which no other country can make comparison," Mr. Coolidge said.

This Thoughtful Stork Seems to Know His Stuff

Eugene, Ore.—Probably the stork didn't do any thinking about it but Mrs. Hogan Hansen of Lorane, and Mrs. Leo Scott of Eagle Point, nearby districts, like to think that he had a regard for tradition.

The women, friends since babyhood, graduated from school together, announced their engagement together, prenuptial showers were given jointly and they were married on the same day.

So what could be more fitting than the stork's recent act in presenting Mrs. Hansen with a girl and Mrs. Scott a boy born on the same day?

ESCAPED PRISONERS

Two Who Fled From Truck Enroute To Quarry Are In Solitary Confinement.

John Emerine and Carl Davis, penitentiary prisoners who were recaptured in a cornfield, Tuesday, within an hour after they had staged a break for liberty, were in solitary confinement, Wednesday.

The escape, according to Warden Thomas, occurred while the two prisoners, Davis, aged 38, a "lifer," and Emerine, an inmate since 1918, were enroute to the prison quarry in McKinley avenue where they were to do some tin repair work.

They were in a truck and jumped when it passed beneath a bridge in McKinley avenue, near the prison quarry. Riding with them was another prisoner.

Foiling the Scandal mongers

Put it out of the power of any one truly to report you not to be a sincere or a good man; let your practice give the lie; that is all very feasible, for, pray, who can hinder you from being just or sincere? To make all sure, you should resolve to live no longer than you can live honestly; for, in earnest, reason would rather you were nothing than a knave.—Marcus Aurelius.

At present we are carrying the following flavors: Combination ice, pineapple ice, black walnut, maple nut, chocolate, cherry, strawberry, peach and vanilla; Neapolitan brick, and vanilla brick and Eskimo pies, all at popular prices.

We wish to thank the public for their past patronage and will endeavor to always serve them with the best.

CONVICTS HELP FIND

Tom Mapp, in for second degree murder, who made no attempt to join them.

Before "Red" Miller, another prisoner, driver of the truck, was aware of their escape, the prisoners were headed down the highway. Miller joined in the chase and Davis hurled a brick at him. As the chase continued the officers were only given one chance to shoot and this was prevented by a woman whose name they failed to secure.

The pursuers trailed them to a cornfield near the prison quarry. Warden Thomas praised the work of Miller and Mapp, especially the latter whom he said drove the deserted truck to the quarry after the two prisoners escaped and then joined in the hunt and discovered Davis.—Columbus Dispatch.

Sawmills and Squirrels

The side-striped ground squirrel or rock squirrel is a resident of the open forests of the western mountain ranges, says Nature Magazine, and is attracted also to the sites of old sawmills and abandoned mining camps. It ranges from quite moderate elevations in Oregon to an altitude of 11,000 feet in some of the southern mountains.

BULB SHOULD BE PLANTED NOT BURIED

Ought Too Be Right Side Up
and Not To Deep—Don't
Send It To China.

Any time between now and the middle of November is bulb planting time.

"When planting bulbs," suggests Victor H. Ries, extension specialist in floriculture at the Ohio State university, "it's always a good idea, in the first place to plant them right side up. They grow better that way. Secondly, don't plant them more than twice their depth below the surface of the soil.

"I recall, as a child, a man who planted bulbs for us so deep that some of them never did come up.
They were more than a foot below the surface of the soil, and they were upside down. The idea is not to bury bulbs, but merely to plant them."

For winter bloom in the house bulbs can be potted during the fall and buried in the pots about a foot deep in moist sawdust or cinders or soil, so they won't dry out or freeze. They may be taken up and brought into the house any time during the winter or early spring and forced into bloom.

Since it takes from eight to ten weeks to produce satisfactory roots on most bulbs, Mr. Ries points out, they should be left buried for at least that length of time. The one exception to this rule is the paper white narcissus, which grows well in gravel and water.

"Be sure to buy from a reliable dealer," the specialist concludes.
"When bulbs are advertised at unusually low prices, there is usually a reason for it, as we sometimes find out when we try to get them to bloom."

KEEP RECORD OF EXPENSES THRU MONTH

Personal Thrift, Like Business Efficiency is Largely a Matter of Method.

"I can't understand why I am always running behind in my personal financial affairs," a man who earns a handsome salary said to the writer some time ago. When asked if he kept a record of his expenditures, he replied that he was too busy to be bothered with such details. "Try the experiment for a month," suggested the writer, "and you will have the answer to your question."

The plan was tried. Every penny of expense was jotted down and at the end of the month the man found that he had spent about $100 more than he had thought was his custom.

That explained the reason why he was always in a quandary about his personal affairs.

When he was brought face to face with conditions he began to change his habits, and his situation improved in like proportion.

There are no doubt many such persons as the one referred to who constantly are running behind and cannot understand why.

Figures do not lie. You can't spend your money and have it. If you want to spend constructively and save wisely you must eliminate the little wastes.

Above everything else you must know what you are doing. You cannot build yourself up on the shifting sands of ignorance or indifference.

It may seem like a waste of time and effort to keep a strict record of every penny you spend, but it is the best method of getting on the right track in the management of your personal affairs.

Personal thrift, like business efficiency, is a matter of method and system. It must be foundationed on complete knowledge of one's affairs.

"Safety First"

Helen and her mother spent the summer on a farm and Helen was heartbroken when one Sunday her pet rooster had to give up his life because the minister was coming to dinner.
Some time later she saw the minister coming to call, and she ran to the barn shooting the chickens, and said:
"Get in quick; here comes the man that ate your father."

Charles G. Duffy, of Cleveland, a former resident, is visiting the Pumpkin Show and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Donnelly.

Yellow Perils

The only yellow peril we've ever
